Teams

Teams are powerful because they coordinate our work across the whole state on Media, Fundraising, Base Building and Campaign Strategy. Are you a badass leader who thrives as part of a team?

We have many ways to participate! If you'd rather join a local group, then Organizing Committees are for you.

Campaign Team

Escalation of tactics. Power analysis. Inside/outside strategy. If you get juiced reading these terms, the campaign team is for you.

The campaign team will take the lead on developing strategy for every phase of our Healthcare as a Human Right campaign. What will our launch event look like? What will be our defining moments and creative tactics? What opportunities should we seize? What makes us powerful enough to make things happen at the statehouse?

We need you, especially if you have any experience on successful local campaigns or organizing drives or game-changing state policy battles.

We need committed people with 3 to 6 hours available per week to join the Healthcare As A Human Right Campaign Team.

Base-Building Team

To get more Organizing Committees (OC's) off the ground, to make sure they have all the information and tools they need. To make sure they're able to get in touch with others, and know what's going on in PPF. Our families. Our friends. Our neighbors. Our faith communities. Our co-workers. Our power comes from our people. Put People First doesn't just build lists. We build leaders.

Local Organizing Committees are where members go to learn, lead and take action. Setting them up requires strategy, training and logistical work. That's where you come in. By joining the Base-Building Team, you'll be on the front lines of building an incredible base of everyday people from all walks of life who are committed to taking action together for our human rights. You'll do that by scouting new areas and working with leaders there to help them develop cores of committed members.

We're very committed organizers and facilitators that draw on work we've done in the past in schools, workplaces and neighborhoods. This time the field is wide open. Imagine the power of 1000 active local OC's networked across our state, each with the ability to activate hundreds of local contacts.

This is important work. Put People First can only win real changes if we build up membership across the state. Our state is diverse in almost every way you can think of, so it takes real ingenuity on our part.

We need more experienced and committed field organizers to join the Base-Building Team.

There is no organization like ours in the state. This is new, and this is exciting.

Media & Communications Team

When was the last time a video changed the way you see the world? What about the last time a song inspired you? Video, art, music, design, social media and the written word are powerful tools that can move people's hearts and engage their minds. The Media and Communications Team uses these tools to tell our story to diverse audiences and help us communicate internally.

Do you know how to design an eye-catching flyer? Cut a video short? Do you love connecting people online or creating strategy for telling an untold story? Join the media and communications team and put your skills in the service of justice!

Fundraising Team

If you have experience with foundation grants, major donor fundraising, or membership/sustainer funding structures, this team is for you. The fundraising team plays a crucial role in helping our organization be able to grow, build power to win, and achieve sustainability.

Put People First! PA was started as a labor of love and it runs on the time and commitment of dozens of people, most of whom are unpaid. We are building a member-led model that is powered from below, not merely staffed from above, but we do need funds for a small number of staff who can make PPF-PA their only focus, so that the participation of hundreds more can be the most effective. We also need resources for other things like transportation, food, supplies and leadership development.
